The Options Equation : Options = Choice = Power = Wealth = Quality of Life more options, more choice, more power, more wealth & increased quality of life

- We are right now at the crossroads, the famous crossroads. Full stop. Hmm, looking around we see plainly that we have options. Options are a good thing. We know we can keep going in the same direction that we have been, or do something different. Maybe a little different, maybe a lot, probably we want to push the gas and not worry about anything, so long as we are in the drivers' seat, moving along in our cruise control or pedal to the metal life. Wait a sec, looky looky, we have a map, maps are also a good thing to have, especially if one has a destination in mind. Not a GPS one either, with whoever making polite or not so polite suggestions, like, be prepared to make an illegal u turn from the all knowing computerMaps are really good, with a legend, topography details more or less, things to check out, and is a lot like Capital Vault Incorporated and the resources you have here at your fingertips. Now how do options relate to do the quality of life? You might ask. The answers are important, but we still need a destination like an enhanced quality of life.

On this road trip, we can invent our way, go where we want, explore new territory, do something a little different, like not get stuck in traffic, economic stalemates, going in circles, running out of gas, doing some maintenance, and making sure we have everything it takes and a little more for our journey. If this was like flying, we all would have a flight plan, our plane would have performance characteristics and mission capabilities that include a whole lot more than dials, gauges and controls. We either get it, or we are out of business.

Lucky for us, quantum physics works, just like when we put our heart, mind, soul and energy into something, everything changes. Today is unique in the history of the universe. Today, we can each choose exactly what kind of world we will create and live in, the country, companies, products and technology that we will contribute to, develop, invest in, build, buy, save with and enjoy. The community we live in is energized by us the people. Our friends and projects we spend and invest our time with as we work at our plans, all have an incredible range of choice points. Today, is like no other, it will never pass by again, we can each freely choose and apply ourselves to achieve our greatest expectations, our wildest dreams, our true hearts desires, the things we value and care about the most.

As we exercise our power we choose to build that alternate reality that includes learning, growth, excellence and expressing the best of who we are, we discover that we can build great things together. Our decisions to accept personal responsibility and exercise our power is something we can choose, and like anything we become more competent instead of incompetent. This creates a wealth of opportunity, challenge and reward as we make plans, develop strategies and execute decisions on our most cherished resolutions. We each can advance forward with purposeful action in the direction of astounding potential, a world and life of our most fantastic dreams and vision, a life of physical and spiritual transformation, growth, perspective, awareness, capability, experience and all the amazing new realities of character, personality and multi-dimensional vitality included with that quality of life. Today is your lucky day, the limitless and awesome universe and Capital Vault Incorporated options are available with you and for you. Everything can change, it is the Options Equation and you are in it!
